Objectives

The Geographical Indication (G.I.) tag is of utmost importance in the present Micro, Small, and Medium Enterprises (MSME) scenario, both in the national and international markets. It provides legal protection and recognition to unique products from specific regions, safeguarding the traditional knowledge and cultural heritage associated with them.

The handicraft and handloom sector in West Bengal plays a significant role in the state's economy and employment generation. The implementation of G.I. tags has contributed to the growth of MSMEs in the region as follows:

- Economic contributions: In West Bengal, various handicraft clusters such as Shantiniketan, Murshidabad, and Bankura have witnessed a surge in demand for G.I.-tagged products. These clusters have become centres of creativity, employment, and cultural tourism, bolstering the state's economy by generating income and employment opportunities for artisans and entrepreneurs.
- Market demand: The introduction of G.I. tags has stimulated market demand for West Bengal's handicraft and handloom products. G.I.-tagged items like Baluchari silk sarees, Dokra craft, and Kantha embroidery have gained popularity both nationally and internationally. This increased demand has led to growth in revenue and market potential for MSMEs operating in the state.
- Artisan empowerment: The recognition and appreciation of West Bengal's handicrafts through G.I. tags have empowered artisans and weavers. It has instilled a sense of pride, reaffirming their skills and traditional knowledge. This empowerment has motivated artisans to preserve and pass on their expertise to future generations, ensuring the continuity of these crafts.

In the national market, the G.I. tag offers several benefits to MSMEs. Products with a G.I. tag often command higher market value and consumer trust. The G.I. tag certifies that the product is genuine and possesses specific qualities or attributes associated with its geographical origin. This distinction gives MSMEs a competitive edge in the national market and help them promote and sell their products more effectively.

With QR codes, the process of identifying and accessing information about G.I.-tagged products will be more accessible and seamless. Authorized users of the G.I. tag will be provided with QR codes generated through government portals, which consumers can then scan to gain detailed insights into the product's origin, authenticity, and characteristics. This integration of technology not only facilitates transparency but also empowers consumers to make informed choices.

The web portal of West Bengal's Department of MSME&T has QR codes exclusively designed for registered users of the G.I. tag. In future, the portal will configure a dynamic link that will provide an interface of national and international buyers with the portal of a registered user.

This comprehensive brochure provides a list of artisans, weavers and producers registered as on 6 February 2025 as users of the G.I. tag as well as their unique QR codes for easy access to their product information. Through the pages of this brochure, you will discover the diversity of products protected by the G.I. tag and the authentic artisans, weavers and producers behind them.

In conclusion, the G.I. tag with the introduction of QR codes will have immense potential to elevate MSMEs in the national and international markets, allowing them to tap into the growing demand for unique, region-specific, and sustainable products. It will be crucial for MSMEs to embrace these initiatives and leverage their benefits to thrive in today's competitive landscape.

This fabric is named after the village 'Baluchar' located on the banks of the River Bhagirathi in Murshidabad district, West Bengal. It is now known as Jiaganj. Baluchari weaving flourished during the period of Musid Quli Khan, the Diwan of Bengal, who brought the weaving tradition all the way from Bangladesh in the 18th century. These textiles are famous for their elaborate 'anchal' (border). It has been eulogized as the "loveliest and most charming of all silks of India".

The process of weaving a single sari may take anything from 15 days to a month, and they naturally come with a higher price tag. The process requires a lot of skill. Though newer machines are available now and can help to streamline production, the installation is expensive. The Baluchari silk sari received a G.I. tag in 2012 and boasts a unique design heritage. In the last few years, home-grown labels have woken up to the uniqueness of this handloom weave, which has been around for centuries. But despite its revival, the craft faces new challenges in the post-pandemic market.

Banglar Rasogolla

G.I. Certificate No. 303 issued on 14/11/2017 and valid upto 17/09/2025.

Name of the Applicant: WBSFP&H DCL

The spongy white rasogolla is believed to have been introduced in present-day West Bengal in 1868 by a Kolkata-based confectioner who started making rasogolla by processing the mixture of chhena and semolina in boiling sugar syrup. The spongy character of the 'Banglar rasogolla', less chewiness, lighter sugar syrup and white/off white colour makes it unique from the rest.

Banglar Rasogolla is a very popular cheese-based, syrupy sweet dish from Bengal and very popular throughout India and South Asia. Varieties of Rasogollas have been displayed at the outlets of various sweet hubs. According to the needs and requirements of clients, many organizations sell canned rasogollas throughout India and also export to the overseas markets after meeting national and international quality standards.

Bankura Panchmura Terracotta Craft

G.I. Certificate No. 306 issued on 28/03/2013 and valid upto 20/09/2033.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: Panchmura Mrit Shilpi Samabay Samity, Bankura, West Bengal

The term terracotta originates from Latin, meaning 'baked earth.' Terracotta craftsmanship is renowned for its distinctive designs, structures, and finishes.

Some of the most prominent terracotta artworks include terracotta horses, Manasha jhar, dolls, women's water pots, tribal art, monkey models, tray flower vases, incense stick holders, terracotta jewelry, and temple panel works.

This cottage industry is primarily located in Panchmura village within the Taldangra block of Bankura. The terracotta Bankura horse is a popular decorative item in homes worldwide, symbolizing Indian folk art and reflecting the aspirations of rural communities. To meet the demands of the modern global market, local potters are increasingly blending traditional rural styles with refined urban aesthetics to create unique terracotta art pieces.

The Department of MSME&T has facilitated the marketing of these products, enabling artisans to sell their creations in various districts, subdivisions, metropolitan areas, and even internationally. Additionally, the Government of West Bengal has established a Rural Craft Hub in collaboration with UNESCO to further support these artisans.

Bardhaman Mihidana

G.I. Certificate No. 290 issued on 29/04/2017 and valid upto 12/03/2025.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Names of the Applicant: Bardhaman Sitabhog and Mihidana Traders Welfare Association and DIC

The unique sweet Mihidana is closely associated with Bardhaman. Historical accounts indicate that it was first created at the request of the Maharaja of Bardhaman many years ago. This delectable treat was invented in Bardhaman approximately 144 years ago, but its fame grew significantly after Lord Curzon praised it in 1904 during his visit to Bengal. The preparation of Mihidana utilizes the aromatic rice flour of Gobindobhog/ Kaminibhog, which is native to the region. This sweet is distinguished by its unique taste, soft texture, and enticing aroma, earning it recognition and admiration from discerning consumers worldwide.

To promote indigenous products with Geographical Indication (G.I.) status, the first shipment of G.I.-tagged Mihidana from Bardhaman, West Bengal, has been exported to the Kingdom of Bahrain. There is a strong demand for Mihidana in both domestic and international markets. A Geographical Indication QR code will assist buyers in verifying its authenticity. Careful measures have been implemented during the purchasing, processing, packaging, storage, and transportation stages to uphold hygiene and sanitation standards. Additionally, Indian multinational restaurant aggregators and food delivery services are now offering this delicacy.

Bardhaman Sitabhog

G.I. Certificate No. 289 issued on 29/04/2017 and valid upto 12/03/2025.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Names of the Applicant: Bardhaman Sitabhog and Mihidana Traders Welfare Association & DIC

The unique sweet Sitabhog is closely associated with Bardhaman. Historical accounts suggest that it was first created at the request of the Maharaja of Bardhaman many years ago. Sitabhog is a delicious dessert made from cottage cheese (known as chhana in Bangla), rice flour, and sugar. Although it resembles pulao in appearance, it is distinctly sweet in flavor.

The small dumplings included in Sitabhog are referred to as 'Nikhuti'. This dessert is celebrated for its unique taste, soft texture, and enticing aroma, which have garnered recognition from discerning consumers worldwide. Sitabhog enjoys significant demand in both domestic and international markets. A Geographical Indication QR code will assist buyers in verifying its authenticity.

Meticulous care has been taken during the purchasing, processing, packaging, storage, and transportation of both the ingredients and the finished product to uphold hygiene and sanitation standards for Bardhaman Sitabhog. Additionally, Indian multinational restaurant aggregators and food delivery services now offer this delicacy.

Bengal Dokra

G.I. Certificate No. 316 issued on 28/03/2018 and valid upto 16/08/2026.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Names of the Applicant: Bankura Bikna Dokra Hastajata Kutir Silpa Kalyan Samity; Dariyapur Dhokra Artisans Co-operatives Industrial Society Limited; & Shilp Danga, Bikna

The indigenous art of Dokra is one of the oldest known techniques for non-ferrous metal casting in human history. Initially, Dokra was developed locally to create measuring bowls for villagers. Over time, artisans refined the process, transforming it into a sophisticated form of designer art. This rich tradition, characterized by its boldness and vibrancy, has made Dokra a highly sought-after collector's item.

Dokra statues are celebrated globally for their primitive simplicity, enchanting folk motifs, rustic charm, and creative designs. The pieces feature a rustic and antique finish that enhances their allure. Today, rural artisans also craft jewelry from Dokra, which is increasingly popular among urban consumers. The traditional themes represented in these cast metal sculptures include depictions of Hindu deities, tribal gods, bowls, elephants, horses, birds, cattle, and various jewelry items such as necklaces, earrings, anklets, and kajal holders.

Handicraft products from this art form can be found in various emporiums and showrooms throughout West Bengal and beyond.

Bengal Patachitra

G.I. Certificate No. 317 issued on 28/03/2018 and valid upto 16/08/2026.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: Chitrataru, Paschim Medinipur

In Sanskrit, patta means 'cloth' and chitra translates to 'picture,' which defines Patachitra as a traditional form of painting on fabric known for its vibrant colors, intricate motifs, and simple themes, primarily drawn from mythology. The Patachitra tradition dates back over a thousand years and includes various styles such as Durga Pat, Chalchitra, Tribal Patachitra, Medinipur Patachitra, and Kalighat Patachitra.

Notably, the Patachitra from Naya village in Paschim Medinipur is part of the collection at the National Museum of Ethnology (MNE) in Lisbon. In the neighboring village of Pingla, artists practicing this art form refer to themselves as Chitrakar.

The Geographical Indication for Patachitra from West Bengal is recognized as Bengal Patachitra. These paintings are exported to various countries, including the USA, UK, UAE, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Singapore, Malaysia, Spain, France, and Canada. Additionally, there is a robust local market for Patachitra available at numerous handicraft fairs throughout India.

Dhaniakhali Saree

G.I. Certificate No. 160 issued on 06/01/2012 and valid upto 01/07/2029.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: Directorate of Textiles, Department of Micro & Small Scale Enterprise & Textile, GoWB

One of the most beloved traditional handloom sarees of West Bengal is the Dhaniakhali saree deriving its name from the place Dhaniakhali in Chinsurah subdivision in Hooghly district. Hooghly district is home to some of the oldest cottage industries like silk and cotton handloom weaving.

The origins of the sari can roughly be traced back to 1935 when Dhaniakhali was on its way to becoming a fertile ground for handloom textiles, of which the most prominent was the eponymous sari, as well as Bangla tant weaves. Traditionally, the sari is crafted from pure cotton with a yarn count of 100 S (in both the warp and weft portions), which explains its paper-thin texture. In Dhaniakhali block, every household has at least one loom. The sari produced here is thus named after the area. The material for the Dhaniakhali saree is somewhat coarse and heavier than other textiles from Bengal but suits the middle-class budget and as such is popular. The best part is that it is very climate-friendly and withstands the heat and humidity of India, keeping you comfortable.

An ordinary Dhaniakhali saree takes a minimum of two days, about 10–12 hours each day, to be woven. The exotic ones take 4–5 days to weave and are sold for hefty sums. Interestingly, the Jamdani saris that originated in Dhaka and famous among the rich and aristocratic of the world are also produced in Dhaniakhali. The weavers have co-operatives and many of them directly sell to the government and their stores which help the weavers get their dues on time. Tourists can take a day trip from Kolkata to tour the weaver's village where the legendary Dhaniakhali Tant Saree is woven.

Garad Saree

G.I. Certificate No. 533 issued on 02/01/2024 and valid upto 07/09/2030.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: The West Bengal State Handloom Weavers Co - Operative Society Limited

The Garod saree, a symbol of purity and auspiciousness, is a traditional handwoven silk saree originating from Murshidabad and Birbhum districts of West Bengal, India. True to its name, "Garod," meaning white, the saree typically features a white or off-white body with a vibrant solid-colored border.

Exquisite features

Fabric: Crafted from 100% pure silk, ensuring a luxurious drape and feel.

Design: Characterized by a plain white or off-white body, complemented by a contrasting colored border and a striped pallu.

Traditional colours: The classic combination features a white body with a red border and pallu, symbolizing fertility and auspiciousness.

Cultural significance: Deeply rooted in Bengali tradition, the Garod saree is worn by women during religious ceremonies and weddings, representing purity, auspiciousness, and fertility.

A rich history

The Garod saree gained popularity among the Bengali aristocracy in the 18th century, becoming a symbol of elegance and tradition. Traditionally woven by hand on fly shuttle pit looms using fine silk and golden zari yarn, the saree showcases intricate craftsmanship.

The saree often features plain borders and grounds, with some variations incorporating exquisite J/C or jala designs on the border and ground.

In 2024, the Garad saree received the prestigious recognition of a Registered Geographical Indication, solidifying its cultural and historical significance.

This timeless saree continues to be cherished by Bengali women, embodying the rich heritage and traditions of West Bengal.

Joynagar Moa

G.I. Certificate No. 224 issued on 23/03/2015 and valid upto 09/05/2032.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: Joynagar Moa Nirmankari Society, South 24-Parganas

The Joynagar Moa is a seasonal Bengali sweetmeat delicacy prepared from date palm jaggery and Kanakchurkhoi. This variety of moa originated in Joynagar Majilpur of the South 24 Parganas district in West Bengal. In 1920s two friends, Purna Chandra Ghosh (aka Purna) and Nityagopal Sarkar (aka Buchki) started selling moa in local weekly markets and it came to be known as Buchki's Moa, which later came to be known as Joynagar Moa. In 1929 Buchki and Nitya set up their own sweet shop named Sri Krishna Mistanna Bhandar in Joynagar Majilpur Town, near Joynagar Majilpur railway station. The shop is still in operation and is managed by the granddaughter of Purna Chandra Ghosh.

Joynagarer Moa is made with Nolen Gur (jaggery made from date palm tree extract with exquisite taste and aroma), Kanakchurkhoi (a form of popped rice made from a special variety of aromatic rice), Gawa ghee (a type of clarified butter made from cow's milk), elach (cardamom), and posto (poppy seeds). Both Nolen Gur and Kanakchur rice are winter products (available around November to January) and hence Joynagarer Moa is available only during this period.

Joynagarer Moa received the Geographical Identification (GI) tag in 2015, which will enable the product to be protected from unauthorized uses and piracy. This industry is also facing problems concerning the decrease of date palm trees has created a shortfall in the supply of nolen Gur.

The short shelf-life of Joynagarer Moa has always been a problem. If temperatures are low, it can last for a maximum of four days. Refrigeration spoils the taste, so a proper scientific package was needed to extend the shelf life. This is the main hindrance for promoting export of the product not only to abroad but to the distant part of our country for expansion of its market. At present, some units have started the lab, where the raw material goes to a scientific screening before being used for manufacturing. The final product also goes through a quality control test, maintaining the guidelines of food safety. Some of them have also come up with innovations like diabetic moa, chocolate moa and moa cake.

Korial Saree

G.I. Certificate No. 534 issued on 02/01/2024 and valid upto 07/09/2030.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: The West Bengal State Handloom Weavers Co-Operative Society Limited

The Korial (Korial) saree is a traditional garment from Bengal, renowned for its elegance, simplicity, and cultural significance. It is deeply rooted in the weaving traditions of West Bengal, primarily produced in areas such as Murshidabad, Nadia, and Burdwan. The term “Korial” is derived from the Bengali word ‘kora,’ which means unbleached or raw, reflecting the saree’s purity and distinctive characteristics.

Evolution and cultural importance

The Korial saree has evolved from the Garad saree, which is traditionally worn by Bengali women during religious ceremonies and significant occasions. While the Garad saree features a simple white or cream base with red borders, the Korial saree presents a more elaborate version, showcasing richer designs, vibrant borders, and intricate detailing on the pallu (anchal).

Historical Context

In the 18th century, Murshidabad became a center for the thriving silk trade. The district’s wealth contributed to the production of luxurious silk sarees, including Korial sarees, which emerged as symbols of status and tradition. In 2024, the Korial saree was recognized as a Geographical Indication (GI) product, further establishing its significance as a cultural and economic emblem of West Bengal.

Design and craftsmanship

Korial sarees are handwoven from natural fibers, particularly mulberry silk, in regions like Mirzapur and Murshidabad. These sarees typically feature solid red borders, intricate designs on the pallu, and lavish embellishments. The base color is usually white or cream, symbolizing holiness and purity, while heavy gold and silver accents add a regal flair.

The Korial saree remains a timeless representation of Bengal’s rich textile heritage, celebrated for its elegance, cultural symbolism, and exquisite craftsmanship. It continues to hold an esteemed position in Bengali traditions and festivities.

Madurkathi

G.I. Certificate No. 320 issued on 28/03/2018 and valid upto 17/08/2026.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: The West Bengal Khadi & Village Industry Board, GoWB

Madurkathi mats, or madur, are mats woven in West Bengal from a reed called madurkottir, or madurkathi. Mat-weaving in India dates back to the Indus Valley civilisation. In the Vedic Period, sages were offered grass mats to sit on. From the Medieval Period, research has thrown up evidence of mat-weaving in the region of Bengal, with both ordinary and fine-quality mats being produced. The raw material used to make madur mats is a sedge of the genus Cyperus: Cyperuspangorei (formerly Cyperustegetum). Known locally as madurkathi, it grows on marshy land, thriving in southern and eastern India including the area of Medinipur.

Mats are an integral part of Bengal's lifestyle

A huge number of household of women and their family members are also engaged in weaving of mats of both Purba and Paschim Medinipur Districts, especially in Sabang, Pingla, etc. Door mats, wall hangings and various utility items and accessories, including folding mats, curtains, pencil boxes, blinds, bags, folders, table mats, toiletries pouches, gift boxes, spectacle cases and such diversification are in demand in various handicraft fairs in and outside the state.

The Geographical Indication of madurkathi of West Bengal is registered as 'Madurkathi'. Madurkathi's eco-friendly nature has made it a hit globally. The rural artisans of Medinipur have had the opportunity to promote the craft in countries like China, Norway, and South Korea, where its biodegradable properties and eco-friendliness have garnered significant appreciation.

Nakshi Kantha

G.I. Certificate No. 49 issued on 21/01/2008 and valid upto 06/04/2026.

Name of the Applicant: Kaaru Kul Foundation

The Nakshi Kantha is a traditional folk art form that involves quilting old dhotis, sarees, and other garments, embellished with colorful threads sourced from saree borders. This intricate embroidery showcases elaborate floral, animal, human, and household motifs, reflecting the socio-cultural landscape of Bengal in the 19th century. The name 'Nakshi Kantha' is derived from the Bengali word "naksha," which means artistic patterns.

Originally, kanthas featured a white background adorned with red, blue, and black embroidery. Over time, additional colors such as yellow, green, and pink were incorporated into the designs. The primary stitch used in this craft is the running stitch, known as the "kantha stitch." Traditionally crafted for family use, nakshi kanthas have seen a resurgence in popularity and are now produced commercially, gaining international acclaim.

Today, the Nakshi Kantha has evolved beyond traditional quilts to include a variety of products such as upholstery, wall hangings, sarees, and scarves. These modern creations often reassemble old motifs and incorporate elements of rural life, including depictions of Hindu temple chariots, wedding processions, and bustling bazaar scenes.

Modern kantha may also feature stitches like the Kashmiri stitch and arrowhead stitch. Occasionally, artisans incorporate herringbone stitch, satin stitch, backstitch, and cross-stitch into their designs.

The districts of Birbhum, Purba Bardhaman, and Murshidabad are particularly renowned for their Nakshi Kantha craftsmanship. While the Kantha stitch has its roots in these areas, its influence has spread across nearly all districts of West Bengal. In summary, Nakshi Kantha is not just a craft but a vibrant expression of Bengali culture and heritage that continues to evolve while honoring its rich history.

Purulia Chau Mask

G.I. Certificate No. 318 issued on 28/03/2018 and valid upto 16/08/2026.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: Chau Mukhosh Shilpi Sangha, Purulia

The art of Chau mask making originated in Charida village during the reign of King Madan Mohan Singh Deo of Bagmundi approximately 150 years ago. These intricate and decorative masks are essential to the Chau dance, a traditional performance art. The masks crafted in Charida, located in Purulia, are primarily used for Chau dance and decorative purposes, gaining international recognition for their unique designs. They depict various characters, including gods, demons, and animals.

Chau masks are made from a combination of paper pulp, mud, and clay, which are sun-dried to harden. Once dried, the masks are vibrantly painted, with holes created for the eyes and nose to allow for vision and breathing. The final touches include embellishments such as zari and other decorative elements.

In 2010, Chau dance was inscribed on UNESCO's Representative List of Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity. The mask makers belong to the Sutradhar community, with around 308 artisans from 115 families engaged in this craft.

The Geographical Indication (GI) tag connects the quality and authenticity of Chau masks to their geographical origin in Charida, ensuring that only authorized users can market this popular product. This recognition helps artisans establish their own brand and has a direct positive impact on the livelihoods of artisan families.

Santiniketan Leather Goods

G.I. Certificate No. 90 issued on 09/09/2008 and valid upto 11/07/2027.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Applicant: Santiniketan Artistic Leather Goods Manufacturer's Welfare Association

Nobel laureate Rabindranath Tagore is celebrated not only for his literary achievements but also for his significant contributions to the economy of Santiniketan. He founded Visva-Bharati University, which became a hub for the craft movement in India. His son, Rathindranath Tagore, and his wife, Protima Devi, continued this legacy by promoting leather craft, resulting in exquisite leather goods that attracted both national and international tourists.

Santiniketan Leather Goods are crafted from vegetable-tanned leather, featuring touch-dye artwork, and are popular in foreign markets, including Japan and the U.S. The products are typically made from East India Leather (E.I. Leather) sourced from sheepskin and goatskin. In July 2007, these goods were registered as "Santiniketan Leather Goods" under the Geographical Indication Act of India.

This cottage industry began about 80 years ago in villages around Santiniketan and was supported by training from Visva-Bharati University. The vegetable-tanned leather retains embossed motifs permanently, enhancing its appeal. Products include coin bags, handbags, pouches, jewelry boxes, and more. The GI tag ensures the authenticity of these goods while helping artisans establish their brand and improve their livelihoods.

Santipur Saree

G.I. Certificate No. 116 issued on 04/09/2009 and valid upto 21/09/2028.

In the early fifteenth century, weavers first settled in Santipur during the reign of Raja Ganesha of Gauda in Bengal. The oldest date of the Shantipur saree goes back to 1409 AD. According to records, the first sarees were woven in Santipur in 1409 AD during the reign of the Gaur king Ganesh Danu Sadhandeb. During the reign of Nadia Raj Rudra Roy (1683–94) and during the Mughal rule, handloom weaving of Shantipur emerged as a traditional industry. Thereafter, the industry came under the control of the East India Company until the Governor General took over. The products were mainly sarees and dhotis, but the specialty of Shantipur was in saree making. The weavers of Shantipur were so famous that they actually found a place in Bengali folk literature.

The well-known nilambari or blue sky saree of Santipur had a special deep navy-blue colour like the sky on a new moon night. In some special nilambaris, the borders were fringed with silver zari stars like the night sky. The specialty of Santipuri saree is the border of this saree.

- Blue (Nilambari)
- Ganga Yamuna - Two different coloured banks are seen on either side of this type of bank.
- Bengkipa - This type of border features lace and muga thread work.
- Bhomra - The name of this type of bee comes from the bee. Mulberry, black, red and chocolate colors abound in this coast.
- Rajmahal - Ruitan patterns are seen in this type of bank.
- Scale Edges - This type of edge has a fish scale like pattern, in which gold and silver color lace work is done.
- Chandmala - This type of border features circular golden bead designs. This Chandmala is named after the Moon.
- Vrindavani Peacock Bank - A pair of peacocks can be seen on this bank

For the subtlety of its design and fine weaving, this saree became a byword for sophistication. Cotton and silk yarn is used as extra warp on the border. Woven with the 'dorookha' technique, the sari looks the same on both sides.

The Santipur Saree got the G.I. tag from the year 2009. The age old Shantipur Handloom Cluster has been revitalized with support from the Government of West Bengal. Designing through jacquard is the most value addition option for the cluster. New designs are collected from various sources and converts into new jacquard designs with the help of local designers.

Tangail Saree of Bengal

G.I. Certificate No. 532 issued on 02/01/2024 and valid upto 07/09/2030.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: The West Bengal State Handloom Weavers Co - Operative Society Limited

The Tangail saree, from the Tangail district of Bangladesh, embodies a rich cultural and weaving heritage. Celebrated for its intricate motifs and lightweight texture, it is made from various materials including cotton, silk, rayon, and zari. These sarees are primarily produced in West Bengal's Nadia district, particularly in Fulia and Shantipur, which are known for their flourishing handloom industries.

On January 2, 2024, the 'Tangail Saree of Bengal' was awarded the Geographical Indication (GI) tag. The saree's historical roots trace back to the Swadeshi movement, evolving through the contributions of muslin weavers and the introduction of Jacquard looms in the early 20th century.

Key features

Intricate Weaving: Handwoven with fine cotton or silk threads, Tangail sarees display elaborate patterns created using Jacquard techniques.

Unique motifs: The designs feature floral patterns, paisleys, geometric shapes, and traditional Bengali themes, making each saree a unique piece of art.

Lightweight and comfortable: Known for their soft and airy texture, these sarees are perfect for warm climates and everyday wear.

Decorative borders and pallus: They often include ornate borders and intricately designed pallus that enhance their elegance and regal appeal.

Cultural significance: Frequently worn during festivals, weddings, and special occasions, Tangail sarees symbolize Bengali heritage and tradition.

Durability and versatility: These sarees are not only durable but also versatile, suitable for both casual and formal settings.

Fulia has emerged as a center for innovating traditional Tangail patterns with modern designs, ensuring the craft remains relevant in contemporary fashion on a global scale. Tangail sarees beautifully blend timeless traditions with modern aesthetics, making them a treasured addition to the world of handlooms.

Wooden Mask of Kushmandi

G.I. Certificate No. 319 issued on 28/03/2018 and valid upto 16/08/2026.

QR codes issued by the Department of MSME&T, GoWB

Name of the Applicant: Mahisbathan Gramin Hasta Silpa Samabay Samiti Limited, Dakshin Dinajpur

The Rajbanshi community in the Dakshin Dinajpur district of West Bengal is renowned for its unique art form of wooden masks, which play a significant role in the performance of a ritual dance called Gomira. These masks are crafted in two main types: one intended for household decoration and the other specifically designed for use in the traditional Gomira dance. Although both types are made using similar processes and materials, there are notable differences between them. Masks intended for dancing have hollowed-out features such as eyes and mouths, while decorative masks are typically bulkier and heavier.

Historically, the masks were crafted from 'pure woods,' such as Neem, which holds significance in Hindu mythology. However, artisans now primarily use wood from the Gamar tree, along with other locally available and more affordable options like mango, pakur, kadam, gamhar, and teak. While the dance masks are often brightly painted to enhance their visual appeal, decorative masks are generally left unpainted, although some may feature a black hue derived from the fruit of the Basatbot tree.

The exceptional craftsmanship of the wooden mask makers from the Kushmandi block of Dakshin Dinajpur gives this craft a distinct identity. The knowledge, skills, and traditions associated with wooden mask making have been passed down through generations, significantly contributing to the artisans' expertise.

Despite its rich cultural heritage, this traditional craft faces strong competition from modern influences. Additionally, the craft has not expanded beyond its original location to surrounding areas. However, the Geographical Indication (GI) tag has brought increased attention to this art form at both national and international levels. This recognition has helped artisans become more aware of their rights and improved their ability to market their products according to demand.

As a result, there has been a noticeable increase in the performance of these artisans. They are now able to promote their work for export, which ultimately enhances their earnings. Recently, artists have also begun creating diversified products such as small fridge magnets and lamp shades, further broadening their market reach.
